

CHAPTER V

CONCLUSION AND SUGGESTION

A. Conclusion

Based on the discussion and analysis above, researcher can draw the following conclusions:

1. There are eight types of figurative language found in the Harry's House album, the most figurative language used in the album is allusion and the other figurative that the researcher found is hyperbole, metaphor, paradox, parallelism, personification, symbol, and synecdoche.
2. The meaning and intent of the figurative language found in the album based on the researcher perspective as a listener and the fact that mentioned by the songwriters. Afterwards, the researcher can conclude that the use of allusion as the dominant figure of speech in the album aims to convey a message by providing references from an event, famous place, or person.

B. Suggestion

Based on the research conclusion above, there are several suggestions that could be considered. It suggest to the learners to improve their ability on understanding figurative language by applying linguistics on analyzing any media learning. It also suggest the teacher to find an interesting media, it can be music or any text to improve the students willingness in learning semantics especially figurative language. It is also suggested that this study can be used as a reference for future researchers, particularly those who are experiencing difficulties and are interested in conducting research. In addition, future researchers may employ other theories in their research. The author hopes that this study will be useful to another researcher.