ABSTRACT

Faricha Aini Nisa, 1950210093, The Influence of Product Innovation, Brand Awareness, and Green Products on Muslim Fashion Purchasing Decisions UMKM Godong Salam

Current business developments are very tight, indirectly creating competition among several Micro, Small and Medium Enterprises (MSMEs). The creative economy is a concept that combines creativity that relies on ideas and knowledge of human resources through information. So in this case the UMKM Godong Salam "ecoprint" carries out a series of ways to be able to improve product purchasing decisions. This research is motivated by the existence of competitors that require SMEs to innovate products, lack of awareness of the existence of the Godong Salam brand which many people do not know about the existence of the brand, and there are many fashion industries out there that have not paid attention to the surrounding environment which makes UMKM Godong Salam committed to maintaining natural products as one of the characteristics of ecoprint products by implementing the concept of green products.

This study aims to determine the effect of product innovation, brand awareness, and green products on purchasing decisions for Muslim fashion ecoprint products at UMKM Godong Salam. This type of research uses field research with a quantitative approach. The sampling method uses non-probability sampling, accidental sampling technique. The results showed that the product innovation variable, brand awareness variable, and green product variable had a positive and significant and positive effect on the purchasing decision of Godong Salam MSME products "ecoprint".
