

CHAPTER V CONCLUSIONS AND SUGGESTIONS

A. Conclusion

Based on the result of the data analysis, the writer concludes as follows:

1. Kinds of deixis that are found in the student's sentences during the English writing class are person deixis (I, you, we, they, other) spatial deixis (that, there, this, there), time deixis (ago, past, yesterday, every year, every afternoon, past), discourse deixis (so that, after that), and in the students' composition are not found social deixis.
2. Student mostly used person deixis in their compositions as pronoun to conveying their meaning to indicate people. Deixis those are found in the data of the students' composition display reference. The person deixis almost are found in every sentence by the writer.

B. Suggestions

Regarding the result of the research, the researcher gives some suggestions to the:

1. Teacher
The researcher hope that the result of this research can motivate the teacher and give more knowledge about deixis for the students in teaching-learning process to use English as one of the main language in conveying English lesson to the students in the English class. Thus, those cases make the students easier to accept English lesson which the part of it usually was conveyed by using English. Therefore, the students have motivation to improve their English mastery for supporting their writing.
2. This research hopefully can help students in understanding deixis, reference and make them be motivated to improve their ability in understanding and learning English, therefore it can support ability in writing English smoothly by practicing to writing English all the time and behaving open minded to other who give correction to their mistakes.
