PREFACES

Alhamdulillah, the writer would like to thank to Allah for the unlimited blessing including, health, occasion, willingness given to the Writer during the process of making this paper untitled “ Exploring Students’ Motivations for Joining STEC (Student English Club): a Phenomenology Study at Islamic Institute State of Kudus”, and finally the writer could finally submitted her thesis to the Munaqosyah this semester. Also, Sholawat and Salam always be upon to Prophet Muhammad Peace Be Upon Him guide us from the jahiliyah era to the blessing era.

In this chance, the writer would like to wrote an introduction about the thesis paper, which explains the study's general background in brief and explains the reasons for conducting the thesis paper. This study about the activities in the English Club might also assist students in improving their English skills. The purpose of this study was to establish what motivated students to join the English club, what supportive factors and challenges they faced, and to discover a link between students' motivation and the English Club Program. Why the writer decided to do research under this title, just because the writer want to shown that even explore the motivation of students when they join English Club as their extracurricular besides learning the English language amidst the regular classroom. In other side, researcher wants to figure out how students’ motivation can affect the English club program from the students’ point of view. Researcher link both of English Club and the English Education Department has similar enthusiasm to advance the quality of English language learning and teaching. It follows there has been no study about students’ motivation and experience conducted on this organization before. And English Club is a prospective club that in the future students could have a better opportunity to join and participate in international events range.
